Great Liner Goes to Bottom at Mouth of St. Lawrence River Following a Collision With a Collier.

Four hundred and eighteen survi- the Storstad staggered off in the darkvors were pleked up from floating wreckage and two lifetionts. And only 12 of the saved are women.

Bathered plecement from survivors the borror of this wreck grows with the telling.

Waters Quickly Engulf Ship.

The doomed ones had little time even to pray. They were engulfed by the onrushing waters that swallowed the big ship inside of nineteen minutes from the time she was struck.

The wireless operators on the Emlast, had time only to send a few "S. O. S." cails for help when the rising waters sileaced their instruments. That silence told the rescuers miles away more potently than a bugle that doom had overtaken the ship.

Only six hours before this fateful collision the passengers sang as a good-night hymn "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," played by the Salvation Army band on board.

The members of that band and most of the 165 Salvantlooists were among the lost.

Survivors Tell of Fog.

It was foggy, according to survivors. when the Empress of Ireland, a steelhulled, steel-bulkheaded ship of more tban eight thousand tons, left Montreal at 4:30 Thursday afternoon in command of H. G. Kendall of the Royal Naval Iteserve, one of the most skilled of transatiantic navigators.

Forest fires also obscured the stmosphere and the blg shlp, in charge of a pilot, proceeded slowly on her way to sea. At midnight the pilot aide left near Fither Point, shouling a merry "Bon Voyage" as he went down their ladder to his waiting boat.

The darkness at this time was intense and the ship under the slowest speed possible with steerageway held her couras. Her decks were described. The passengers had all sought their berths with no thought of impending

Out of the darkness, on the port side, soon after 2.30 in the morning there loomed the little Norwegian col-Her, not baif the size of the Empress but fated to be her destroyer.

Not until the collier was almost abeam of the big liner was the danger known on either ship. The fog had blotted out the lighta as well as the port and starboard lights of both ships.

Quick orders trumpted on both vessele were heard. Hut they came sll too late.

of the survivore, in explaining ckness with which the Empress and went down, said:

"The collier, being only comething over 3,000 tons, did not reach up even to the upper or topmost deck of our hull. Her bow cut under the upper deck and took a peeling off the side of our ship that allowed the water to rush into the lower decks. Then the liner heeled over, and even those in the superstructure deck rooms had no chance to save theriselves. Hundreds of them must have been dumped out of their berths and slammed against the walls with stunning force."

Kendall Blames Collier.

Rimonski, Que., June 1.—Cnpt. Har-ry G. Kendsii of the Empress of ireland blames the commander of the coiller Storstad for the sinking of the liner. Before the coroner's jury Saturday he told how the Empress dropped its pliot Thursday night at Fither Point, nest which the disaster occurred.

"We then proceeded full speed," continued Capt. Kendall. After passing Reck point gas buoy I sighted the steamer Storstad, it then being clesr.

"The Storstad was then about one poliit, twolve degrees, on my stnrboard bow. At that time I saw a slight og bank coming gradunliy from the and and knew It was, going to pass between the Storstad and mysclf. The Storstnd was about two mlles away at that time.

Blows Whistle as Warning.

Then the fog enme and the Storstad's lights disappeared. I rang full speed astern on may engines and topped my ship.

"At the same time I blew three hert blasta on the ateamer's whistle, meaning (I am going full speed astern.) The Storstad answered with the whistle, giving me one pralenged

"I then looked over the side of my ship into the water and I saw my ship was stopped. I stopped my engines and blew two long blasts, meaning 'My ship was underway but stopped and has no way upon her.' He answered me again with one prolonged blast The sound was then about four points upon by starbnard bow.

Lights Appear From Gloom.

"It was still foggy. About two munutes afterward I saw his red and green lights. He would then be about one ship's length away from me. I shouted to him through the megaphone to ge full speed astern, as I saw that the col lision was inevitable; at the same time could arrive, for the shock had I put my orgine full speed ahead with smashed the forward steel bulkhead my helm hard apert, with the object of avolding, if possible, the shock. Almost at the same time he came right In and cut the Empress down in a line between the funnels.

"I shouted to the Storstad to keep passeogers who stood on her manting full speed ahead to fill the hole he had made. He then backed away. The ship began to fill and listed over rnoldly. When the Storstad struck the One of the survivors, relating that Empress I had stopped my engines.

Should Have Heard Call. "What was the cause of the collisanswered Kendall. Capt. Kendell, in answer to a question by a juror sald that when he shouted to the Storstnd's captain to stand fast he received no answer. It was impossible for him not to have Mentreid, Que., June 1 .- With Its bows crumpled in and twisted around at an acute angle to port, and with a gap showing on the port sldc only a foot or so above the water line, the Norwegian collier Storetad, which rnmmed the liner Empress of Ireland limped into the harbor.

A few inlinutes later a warrant of arrest, taken out by the Canadian Pacitle railway, was nalled to its mainmast by order of W. Slmpson Walker, K. C., register of the Quebec admir-

Subsequently a statement based on Capt. Andersen's report, as well as the reports of other officers, was given

According to the captain and officers, contrary to what has been stated by the captain of the Empress of Ireland, the Storstad did not back away after the collision. On the contrary, it steamed shead in an effort to keep its bows in the bole it had dug into the side of the Empress

LESSON FOR JUNE 7

COMING OF THE KINGDOM.

LESSON TEXT-Luke 17:20-37.
GOLDEN TEXT-"Lo, the Kingdom of God is within you." Luke 17:21.

1. The Kingdom Present, vv. 20, 21. The Pharisees held some peculiar ldeas about the coming of the kingdom. Contrary to their ideas there are no special outward signs to berald its coming. The word "observation" v. 20, is an astronomical one and suggests that the kingdom was to come in a bodily shape from the sky, a current expectation on the part of the In answer to the boastful Pharisees

(v. 20) Jesus plainly told them that he bimself is the kingdom, and that that kingdom was in their midst or "among you," see (v. 21) margin. Their question was a flippant one, one of unbelief, and to it Jesus makes a characteristically brief, but clear reply, that partook of the nature of a rebuke. The kingdom would not come with trumpets and drum. They could not say, "Lo here! lo there!" its coming was not to be spectacular, arresting the attention of some who in turn brought it to the attention of The authorized rendering otbers. "within you" does not imply that the kingdom already existed in the individual lives of his questioners. Suhsequent teaching of Jesus shows that he bere refers to another and a final coming of the kingdom, at the time of the final coming of the son of man. What he desired to teach these Pharlsees was that the kingdom of which they spoke bad alrendy appeared due to the fact of his presence in their midst. The carping Pharisees withdraw and Jesus speaks openly to his disciples of the days that will come, a time of persecution when they will long for comfort.

Prophecy Fulfilled.

11. The Visible Son of Man, vv 22.24. The kingdom in its outward form was rejected by the Jews, John 1:26, 27. In its spiritual form it is now in the hearts of believers (Rom. 14:17), but he who was rejected with contempt will one day be aought after. though in valn, Matt. 23:37-39. Dur ing the time of his absence many shall claim to be Christ (v. 23), hut wo are not to helieve such claims. History has abundantly proved and fulfilled this prophecy. When be really comes there will be a sudden publicity (v. 24), that shall flash from one corner to the other of the heavens, Matt. 24:27; then "every eye shall behold hlm." "So shall the son of man ho In his day." This instruction Jesus gives to his disciples. Men shall search for him, a time when he shall not be present as he then was. After the false ones will come a day of revelation when the whole heavens will reveal him and all will know it.

Finality of Events.

III. The Day of the Son of Man. vv. ever, he must suffer and be rejected. hut following that rejection men will marry, earry on merchandising and merriment as in the days of Noah and those of Lot. In the days of Noah and of Lot there camo a sudden hult in these activities and a judgment of flood and fire, even so "after the same manner shall it be in the day that the son of man is revealed," v 30. This refers to the finality of events when the kingdom of God comes by way of judgment. Here Jesus sets bis seal upon the truthfulness of these two events which preceded bis first advent. If they be not true then he is a false teacher. Like as men discredit those events they likewise would set aside his teaching about his second advent. Many claim that verso 3t refers to the destruction of Jernsalem; the context to us clearly disany such interpretation. proves Verses 32 and 33 must be taken together

Summary: Quite emphatically this Murray, Ky Regioning on the 11th passage is a teaching on the subject of the coming of the klugdom of God. That kingdom came when Christ eame In grace. It will come when he comes in judgment. It is coming constantly between the two advents. Remember his reading of Isalah's prophecy, Luke Franctort, Ky .- A meeting will be 4:18, 19; cf. Isa. 6t:1-9. In his first advent he did come to preach the acceptable year, the year of grace. That day is still with us. In his second advent he will procinim the day of the vengeance of God. He will establish the kingdom, will build the waste places and raise desolations. Teday the kingdom of God is among as in power through the presence of Christ by the spirit in the living church.

To the Pharlaces he said: "Neither shall they say, lo bere! lo there! for the kingdom is in your midst." To his disciples he said: "They shall say lo there! to here! go not away nor follow them." We cannot localize the kingdom. On an ancient Syrian fragmeat the words of Luke 1:33 read, "and to his kingdom there shall be no frontier." On the lips of the Pharisees, kingdom meant a political or ganization and empire. With Jesus it meana a spiritual realm universal in extent, a rule of righteousness, and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit When he appears all will know. .

ACHES AND PAIN

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Plnkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in low-er part of back and in sides, and presslng down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terro Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work nas produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever com-pounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's lils.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health - many of them openly atate over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

SYNOPSIS.

Eleanora de Toscaca was siogiog in Paris, which, perhaps, acconoted for Edward Courtisodt's appearaoce there. Muttinillitonaire, he wacdered about where fancy dictated. He olighi be to Paris one day and Kaochatka the next. Following the opera he goes to a cafe and is accorded by a pretty young woman. She gives thin the address of Flora Desimone, vocat rival of Toscana, and Flora gives him the address of Eleanora, whom he is determined to see. Courtiandt colers Eléanora's apartments. She orders him out and shoots at him. The cext day Paris is shocked by the mysterious disappearaoce of the prima doons. Realizing that he may be suspected of the abduction of Eleanora Courtiandt arranges for an alist. Eleanora reappears and accuses Courtiandt of having abducted her. His alibt is actisfactory to the police and the charge is dismissed.

No; Venus went a-touring and abode a while npon this same gracious spot, once dear to Pliny the younger.

Seated on one of the rustic benches, his white tennis shoes resting against the lower iron of the railing, a Bavarian dachei anoozing comfortably across his knees, was a man of fifty. ile was broad of shoulder, deep of chest, and clean-shaven. He had laid aside his Pansma hat, and his hair wss clipped closely, and was pleasantly and honorably sprinkled with gray. His face was broad and tanned: the nose was tilted, and the wide mouth was both kindly and humorous. One knew, from the tint of his biue eyes and the quirk of his lips, that when he spoke there would be a bit of brogue. ile was James Harrigan, one time celebrated in the ring for his gameness, his squareness, his endur-"Battling Jimmie" Harrigan, who, when he encountered his first knockout, retired from the ring. He had to his credit sixty-one battles, of which he had easily won forty. He had been outpointed in some and had broken even in othera; but only once had he been "railroaded Into dreamisnd," to use the parlance of the game. That was enough, ile understood. Youth would be served, and he was no longer young. He had, unlike the many in his peculiar service, fived clesnly and with wisdom and fore-sight: he had saved both his money and his health. Today he was at peace with the world, with three sound appetites the day and the wherewithal to gratify them.

Today "Itattling Jimmio" was forgotten hy the public, and he was happy in the seclusion of this forgetfuiness. A new and strange career had opened up hefore him; he was the father of the most beautiful prima donna in the operatic world, and, difficult as the task was, he did his hest to live up to it. It was hard not to offer to shake hands when he was presented to a princess or a duchess; it was hard to remember when to chauge the studs in his shirt; and a white cravat was the terror of his stubby and powerful, had not been trsined to the delicate task of tying a bowknot. The artist knew that she was eud dling the puppy to her heart, and his owu grew twisted. He stooped over his materials again and tied the hox to the easel and the stool, and shifted them under his arm.

"i'ii be up after dinner, Mr liarrigan," he said.

"All right, Abhott" Harrigan waved his hand pleasantly. He was becoming so used to the unvarying statement that Abbott would be up after dinner, that his reply was by now purely mechanical. "She's getting her voice back all right; eh?"

"Benutifully! But I really don't think she ought to sing at the Haines'

"One song won't hurt her. She's nade up her mind to sing. There's uothing for ua to do hut to sit tight."

The artist took the path that ted around the villa and thence down by many steps to the village by the waterside, to the cream-tinted ejuster of shops and enormous hotels.

Itelow, in the village,:a man entered the Grand hotel. fie was tail, blond, rosy-cheeked. He carried himself like one used to military service; slao, like one used to giving peremptory orders. The porter bowed, the director bowed, and the proprietor himself became a porter and the director recognized a of the junketing gods, is completest. personage; the proprietor recognized the man. It was of no consequence that the new arrival called himself Herr Rosen. He was assigned to a suite of rooms, and on returning to the hureau, the proprietor squinted his eyes abstractedly. He knew every woman of importance at that time residing on the Point. Certainly it could be none of these. Ilimmel! He struck his hands together. So that was it: the singer. He recalled the hints in certain newspaper paragraphs, the littie jales with the names left to the imagination. So that was it?

What a woman! Men looked at her and went mad. And not so long ago one had abducted her In Paris. The proprietor threw up his hands in despair. What was going to happen to the peace of this bucolic spot? The youth permitted nothing to stand in his way, and the singer's father was a retired fighter with boxing gloves!

In the ballroom that evening that little son of Sstan called malice-aforethought took possession of Nora; and there was havoc. If a certain American countess had not patronized her; if certain lorgnettes (implements of torture used by said son of Satan) had not been leveled in her direction; if certain fans had not been suggestively sprend between pairs of feminine heads,-Norn would have been sa harmless as a playful kitten. From door to door of the bailroom her mother fluttered like a hen with a duckling. Even Celesto was disturbed, for she saw that Nora's conduct was not due to any light-hearted fun. There was something bitter and tronic cloaked by those smiles, that tinkie of laughter. In fact, Nora from Tuscany flirted outrageously. The Barone suiked and toro at his mustache, lie committed any number of murders, by eye and by wish. When his time came to dance with the mischief-maker, he whirled her around savagely, and never said a word; and once done with, he sternly returned her to her mother, which he deemed the wiscst course to pursue.

"Nora, you are behaving abominably!' whispered her mother, paie with indignation.

"Well, I am having a good time Your dance? Thank you."

And a tender young American led her through the mazes of the wnitz, as some poet who knew what he was about phrased it.

Ity way of parenthests: Herr Rosen marched up the hill and down again, something after the manner of a certain warrior king celebrated in verse. The object of his visit had gone to the haii at Cadenahbia. At the hotel he demanded a motor boat. There was none to be had. In a furious state of mind he engaged two oarsmen to row him across the lake.

And so it came to pass that when Nora, suddenly grown weary of the play, full of bitterness and distaste, hating herseif and every one eise in the world, stole out to the quay to commune with the moon, she saw him jump from the hoat to the landing, scorning the steps, instantly she drew her ince mantie closely about her face. it was useless. She faced him with that quick resowhich has made the Irish so difficult in argument and persuasion. "Witl you marry me? Will you make mo your wife legally? Itefore all the world? Will you surrender, for the sake of this love you profess, your right to a great inheritance? Witi you risk the anger and the iron hand of your father for my sake?"

"Herr Gott! I nm mad!" lie cov ered itis eyes.

Stories Old and New. Soure men are born story teliers, some achieve the story telling faculty. while others-who constitute the The dog struggled in ilarrigan's great majority-can only sit in amazement and fisten to the man who can gibbly reel them off, oue after another, as if they were all new, fresh and original. You can recognize a good story by the number of times you meet it, for the good story is picked up and repented, interchanged, enlarged, improvised and spread, uutil it is ilable to reappear, as natural, in disguise, at the four corners of the earth, and at widely separated periods of time. That's what makes the modern story telier such a delight, because until he finishes you cannot know whether you are about to meet an old friend or be luitinted into novet mysteries. The redeeming feature of it is that every year another erop of listeners grows to maturity for whom the old ones are niwnys new, and who, in consequeuce, must be the perpetual inspiration and the living encouragement to the story teller.

Kept Alive by Electricity,

The attention of surgeons at the General hospital, Itirmingham, England, has been occupied by the most remarkable case of a fad eleven years of sge. He was admitted to the justitution suffering from; a tumor on the hrnin, the removal of which necessitated a most serious operation.

While the surgeons were at work the patient stopped breathing and artificial respiration was resorted to. Dur-ing the course of the operation a large portion of the akull was removed, and when the pressure from the brain was lightened the lad began to breathe again. An electric battery was applied to the chest, and the muscles being thus affected the breathing motion produced proved sufficient to keep the

TOLD BY SURVIVORS

Vivid Stories of Awful Disaster to Liner Empress of Ireland.

Montreal, Quo., June I .- Exciting and vivid stories of their exporiences are told by survivors of the disaster that overtook the liner Empress of Ireland

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Freeman of Wisconsin at the Chatoau Frontenne told of their dash for safety after the Empress was smashed by the collier. Mr. Freeman jumped from his herth. and, seizing a swenter, be threw it around Mrs. Freeman. In the dark they struggled up the companionway and made their way to the port side, where the unmanagenbie lifehoats

The heat-keeled, and, determined to die together, they jumped into the water. They were separated, but both could swim. Whiried about the water, they finally were picked up by a boat from the Storstad.

Woman Tclis of Rescue.

"Following the ainking of the ahip." Mrs. Freeman said, "we were both dragged down. We became separated, but we were fair swimmers and thought we could help ourselves a littlo bit. When we came up I could not see my husband and he could not "Just before the collision I had a premonition that samething dreadful was going to happen. I lay there thinking of it, and then I heard tho whisties going and the men ruuning on deck. That woke my husband up, too. We saw that we were going to be swept off the liner and we locked arms and jumped into the black cold water just before the boat turned.

When i felt my husband's hands torn from mine I thought we nover would see each other again. But we were picked up by bonts from the came veasel.'

Beliboy Tells Vivid Story.

Charles Spencer, a bellboy on the Empress of Ireland, told of the manner in which Captain Kendall saved him. Still hysterical from the suffer-Ing he endured, he cried as he told of his experience.

"When the crush came I ran down to the steerage to wake up the boys there and get them to go to the bulkheads and turn them. They are closed by hand wheels. I did not have much time, because when I reached there the water was two feet deep and i could bardly get through It. I know two of the boys were drowned there. I and another, Samuel Baker, were the only beliboys saved out of the dozen on the vessel. "After I woke up the boys below I ran up to boat deck where men were trying to put the lifeboats overhourd. The Empress had a list to starboard did not reach the other lifeboat, and and the top deek was down to the water. It was going very fast. One of the funnels toppled into the water and almost fell on a lifeboat. When the boat made a final furch I dived into the water because I felt I could get somewhere.

"They took care of us when they put ln at Rimouski, They did not have enough clothes for us, so we took bags and cut holes in them for our arms and legs. They gave us all kinds of socks and old slippers and old shoea that could not be matched, but we were glad to get anything to keep us

"The hulkheads were closed forward. After 1 yelled to the boys to close the bulkheads, I saw Harry Baker and Charloy Turnstall, two of my chums, standing by and closing the doors. They were both lost as they never got on deck."

Volturno Hero Among Saved.

J. Ii. Price, ordinary seaman, who was recently awarded a medal for gallantry for jumping into the water from the Devoniian to savo a Volturno passenger, told this story:

We had just put the pilot off in his boat. He had climbed down tho starboard gangway lato his tender and I had just got the sea ladder ready for carrying forward for stowage.

"Aa i reached the break of the deek under the bridge I saw the Storstad bearing down on our starboard bow. I could see its masthead lights then, but neither of its side lights, its courso was somewhat across ours, and I heard our bridge signal it to starboard its help. He did the same with our engines and stopped our head-and, with the first officer, I clung to combing of the Marconi house. There was some boat gear lashed on top there and its insbings got away and carried the first officer overboard.

"Terrible confusion tollowed, Everything gave way. i saw two or three men carried overboard as greni winches broke their inshings and Propie were jurched into the sea. scrambling up from helow and trying to get to the port side to keep away from the water. It was sli I could do to hang on to the Marconi house. Finally I saw the ship was going. It was on its benm ends, and made dive for it. I got it and just then the ship gave a wallow and went under. The spar and I were earried under the water. "The surface of the water, when I came up, was all covered with peopie, dead and alive; some struggling and some bobbing in the water. The only light came from the flare of some of the automatic life buoys which gnt free when the ship sank. They sort of made a creepy light over it ail. It was

They were pulled aboard, followed by the chief stoward. All these persons were taken in by a boat from the Storatad. Price was picked up by the pilot boat Eureka.

Arthur Ferradny, chief steward of the third-class, sat in the little seaman'a mission, one arm was bandaged and an injured leg was helpless.

Pulled From Bunk by Mate.

"The crash did not wake me," he snid. "One of the mates pulled me from my bunk in the 'giory hole' and told me the ship was sinking. He went up to the deck. While I was erawling out the ship gave a sudden jurch and boxes and trunks feil upon me, tearing my wrist and landing on

"I ran up to the boat deck where the men were trying to get the boats over. A lot of us tried to put over No. 12 bont on the port deck, but could not do it because the vessel had such a list to it. It was to starboard.

"Then we went to No. 11 on the starbourd aide. We got that off and let it down enrefully and it reached the water safely. Then we ran to No. 16 on the port side. The officers were with us helping to get the boat over. While we were nt it, the sbip took a sudden jurch and threw us down the side of the ship, or rather down the sianting deck. The first officer was caught in the boat gear and carried overboard to his death.

Saw Many Women Drowned.

"We tried another boat on the port side, and as the ahlp rolled it filled with women. The turning of the ship niade it impossible to get the bont away and the women saw nnother boat near and jumped out to run to the other over the ship's side. They all of them, I think, were drowned.

"As the vessel rolled over 1 jumped and swam around for half an hour. when I came across a barrel and held on until i was saved by one of the boats from the Storstad.

In his latest poem, "Narcissus," Robert Bridges, the English poet laureate, has banished the comma entirely, so that a procession of ndjectives may he taken, at the reader's optinn, as separate qualities, or as qualifying each other. Thus one may call his hero "almighty wondrous," or regard him as being both, Mr. Bridges' principles of punctuation are not obvious. He loves the exciamation mark, using It five times in the 28 lines of the poem, and sprinkles dashes about with prodigality. He ndopts the colon and does not slight the interrogation mark, while using aow and then a full

GET AFTER SUMMER PESTS

This is the Time to Wage War Against the Deadly Fly and the Annoying Mosquito.

Let us bear in mind that one of the prime objects of a spring cleanup is to eliminate the fly and the mosquito. When we are exercising our muscles and our ingenuity ridding our dwellings and neighborhoods of dust and fiith, it will be worth our while to give these twin winged pests serious attention.

The first spring fly, of course, came some time ago, though she is still pleasantly modest and retiring. It is not reassuring, however, to reflect that the little insect is keeping care fully out of our sight and the reach of our swatters while she lays a few myrlads of eggs, which presently will hatch out into n whole flying regiment of nuisances and disease-carriers.

The shy and unobtrusive mosquito is making the best use of her time for the same purpose. When the open season on human beings arrives she hopes to have a whole nrmy corps of her progeny to lead to the attack. Now is the time to get busy if we want to preserve ourselves from the pests a few months hence. The swatter and the keroseno can are fully as important household implements at this season as the broom and tho scrubbing brush.

A Century Ago.

One hundred years ago Dr. Thomas Fanshawe Middleton was consecrated first bishop of Calcutta. The conseeration took place in London, and soon afterward the new bishop sailed for India. In Calcutta, he laid the foundation for the lilshops' college in 1820, and established a consistory court in that city. Whito zealously engaged in his duties bo was nttacked with a fever, of which he died in 1822. For more than a century the efforts to spread the Christian faith in India have continued. Numerically tho Christian population in the great eastern empire is atili insignificant, amounting to only about one per cent of the population, but it is generally admitted to have an influence out of White the Montana was teaming all proportion to its numbers.

AVOID SPREADING OF DISEASE

Precautions That Should Be Observed by Those Afflicted With Tuberculosis.

All persons who are intimately associated with eases of active pulmonary tubercuissis cannot be too cautious about the proper disposition of tubercular sputum. Such sputum should always be received in cups containing a five per cent solution of iysol or enrboile neld, or, in the absence of these, milk of lime. Paper eups, made especially for this purpose, may he used and subsequently burned. Solied handkerchiefs and cloths should be immersed for one hour in lysol or carbolic seld (five per cent) and then boiled before they are handicd. The patient should be provided with a set of disbes for his exclusive use, and these should be kept by themselves and boiled thoroughly aiter each meal. Hemember that tubercutosis is a preventable disease, but that its control can be accompliated only by the strictest observance of sanitary precautions.
